Dear Mrs Turner,

PE lessons are exciting, well equipped and well looked after. Children at Yew Tree are thriving but in some countries across the globe children are being forced to stitch footballs that your school are using.

Whilst your children are playing with the footballs in your school, poor innocent children are stitching the footballs that we are currently using.

We need to know where our equipment is actually made from. We will not buy the footballs made by children.

Recently we have been reading a book called 'KICK' by Mitch Johnson. Budi dreams about scoring and the crowd screaming his name but is stitching football boots. Even though Budi is a fictional character in reality there are children dealing with what Budi is dealing with.

Did you know that 20% of the Pakistanis who stitch footballs only get less than £1.25. What would you do if 1 in 10 of your children in your class was dealing with stitch football boots.

Can you imagine if your class was dealing with stitching football boots. Imagine if your children had to deal with child labour. Would you be you if you deal with child labour?

Poor innocent children are pleading to be in your lovely, educational classroom. Children are dreaming to have an education just like your class and yourself. They want they education that you are teaching your class.

Fairtrade means children and adults are having better wages to feed their family.

Our goals are to make sure child labour isn't happening for children and that every single child should be getting a brilliant education. We are demanding that you make sure that our equipment is not made by children and purchase from companies such as Bala Sport.

Yours Sincerely,

Kian
