Dear Mrs Turner,

PE lessons in your school are very fun, exciting, and well-equipped for everyone in your school but little children around the world are making these footballs and bibbs for are school and are forced into child labour in Pakistan and many other countries.

Whilst your children get to play with footballs children in Pakistan are hand stitching them with their parents. These children should not be working in factories and be getting an education.

Make sure you know where the equipment is being made because little children could be making these objects. Make sure people are being fair with money and it gets back to the people who made this stuff.

Recently we have been reading this book 'KICK' by Mitch Jonson about a young boy called Budi who is forced into child labour and dreams of playing for the England football team.

Many children dream of being taught by you instead of staying around machinery. These children make football boots and kits for your PE lessons. You need to try find child labour free equipment for your school.

1 in 10 children are being forced into child labour. What would you do if you taught these children how bad would you feel. Can you imagine if your class was being taught into child labour how would you feel? How dreadful would that be?

Around the globe there is little children that dream of being in your classroom instead of doing hard work for 11 hours straight nonstop. Your school needs to help get the money back to the people who made the stuff like the footballs, bibs and the PE equipment for our school.

Let us make sure that child labour is not happening, and children are getting an education instead of working long hours in a dirty factory to help their family's get the stuff they need they need to live.

As our teacher we urge you to teach us to victory and put an end for child labour. Make sure that our PE equipment is child labour free.

Yours Sincerely

Ruben
